It comes, we imagine, from a efforts of those crooks who have a feforts of the actors made little slips in sustaining their characterizations—notably the man whose pronunciation of English is so nearly perfect that it is difficult for him to maintain the slovenity manner of speech called for by his part—but on the whole, the performance was smooth and well rounded. And, before passing on if the man in question were not such a fine actor, his trifling lapses would not even be noticed, much less mentioned. Miss Scott resigns the lead—an unpleasant part—to Virginia Perry, and contents herself with the extremely amusing "Sis Hopkins" role of Lisbeth, which, if memory is not at fault, she played years ago in Mr. Giffen's production, when Richard Bennett was leading man. The missile may appear soon in the European war, as some of the beilig-erents are negotiating for its purchase, he said. The United States is conducting experiments with the projectile at Sandy Hook.

The missile is designed for use in siege guns. Mr. Hammond explained that it carries an aluminothermic mixture, which five seconds after the projectile is discharged turns the steel inside to a white-hot mixture at a temperature of 5,400 degrees Fahrenheit. When the projectile hits, the inventor said, it explodes its white-hot contents, firing whatever inflammable material firing whatever inflammable material it strikes. To avoid the possibility of quenching the flames, Mr. Hammond said, he has equipped the projectile with a chamber filled with hydrowith a chamber filled with hydro-cyanic acid, the fumes of which are deadly.
